Leading manufacturer of household products and foodstuffs
Family-owned business

Full Stack Developer
for the start-up idea factory in Berlin

As a globally active and successful German family-owned business, we are one of the leading manufacturers of household products and foodstuffs. With ingenuity and entrepreneurial spirit we have been ahead of the market for more than 100 years and with 750 patents we are known as the innovation leader in the industry. In our Berlin-based idea factory, a multidisciplinary team collaborates at full speed. For the design and development of user-friendly websites, shops and apps in the IoT environment, we are currently looking for an experienced programmer to function as a creative and imaginative out-of-the-box thinker who enjoys interdisciplinary teamwork in a highly modern environment.

During the onboarding phase, you will familiarise yourself with our services, structures and processes. Right from the start, you will work in an independent and autonomous – in other words agile – team consisting of a graphic designer, a product developer and a data scientist. This is how we are able to get our web applications up and running very quickly and efficiently. Our programmers see themselves as a strong team in which each individual counts. Your job is to design, develop and implement websites and mobile app prototypes. Where necessary, you may work with external service providers, which you will manage accordingly. In addition, the development of digital concepts in the IoT environment/ household devices sector is one of your tasks.

- Designing and developing websites and e-shops
- Designing and programming mobile app prototypes
- Cooperation with external service providers
- Development of digital concepts in the IoT environment / household devices sector

You have 3 to 5 years of concrete development experience, preferably with a focus on web technologies. C++, Java or Python are among your everyday tools of the trade. Knowledge of SQL would be advantageous. You are said to have a keen eye for the big picture, but you are also quite adept at handling all the intricate technical details. Would you like to contribute your creativity to our team, and do you enjoy working agilely in a self-managed group with little bureaucracy and regulations? Then look forward to a multifaceted job in a financially strong company that is structured for long-term success, and enjoy the benefits of working in a very family-oriented environment with people who want to make a difference... not to mention a top workplace in the heart of Berlin!

- Development experience, preferably focussing on web technologies
- C++, Java or Python
- Enthusiasm for agile work
- Creativity
- Passion for thinking outside the box
